

Questioning Education

Elise Braaten ('04)

Somewhere, somehow
I learned to pretend.
A useful tool, I soon found
Creating distance and apathy.
Does this really matter?
That's not a question you ask.
Follow directions and do
What is expected.
If you act out you'll
Be sent to the principal.
He'll tell you how to behave.
Don't question authority.
They know what's best.
For you? Or for them?
It's just easier this way.
Do as you're told.
Free thinking is a
Dangerous game.
No more questions.
That's just the way it is.